Tool Launch Event: Improved Animal Health through Distance Learning

Please join the Food Safety Network for the launch of our 15th new distance learning module, the topic of this module is Animal Health. Developed in partnership with the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) and Texas A&M University (TAMU), this web-based course offers a powerful tool for training foreign regulators, ranchers, industry and other development professionals on priority topics including risk-based surveillance, assessment and emergency response for improved animal health.
